

ABSTRACT

A system and method for providing compliance verification information in the field of network security, is disclosed. The software system, which is designed to 5 be modular, provides compliance verification information with respect to a security policy. Each level of verification may be performed on a local basis, with respect to a network device, or on a global basis, with respect to multiple network devices, such as a
10 communications network.